Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: . ready to charge the British commissioners with having exceeded their instructions and the American with having taken for ultimata points that were brought forward for discussion only and at their own suggestion.⁹ Considering how unwilling the Americans had been to bring the Indians into the negotiations at all, the perversion of truth is self-evident. Goulburn tried to evade responsibility by insisting that the United States had never seriously wished for peace and that her commissioners had seized upon the Indian boundary question as an easy way of reconciling the nation to a continuance of the war--an argument that found ready favor with British editors¹ against whose nation the charge of temporizing could have been more appropriately brought.
