THE HOLY COMMUNION. f 1 Cor. Xi. 26. As often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do shew the Lord s death till he come. To complete our view of the form of worship ordinarily observed in our Church, nothing would now remain, but to turn our attention to that portion of the Communion-service, which is appointed to be said on Sundays and other holidays, when there is no Communion: but, since no religious ordinance can be more important in its design, or more solemn in its form, than that of the holy Table (which, indeed, in primitive See Rubric at the end of the Communion-service. times, was an indispensable part of the daily service, and is still celebrated, in many of our churches, on every sabbath), we shall do better by extending our observations to the whole. The Order of administration of the Lord s Supper, according to the usage of our Church, is so constructed, as to form, in itself, a full and entire Service. It not only provides for every branch of divine worship;--for confession, absolution, thanksgiving, petition, and intercession;--but abounds (perhaps, beyond any other part of the Liturgy) with instructions applicable to every particular both of our faith and practice. But the peculiar character of this sublime Office is its power to revive, in every soul not absolutely dead to all sense both of piety and of its own actual condition, those...
