Linking stories about love, identity, and motherhood in a changing world, the collection includes 'Miss Montana's Wedding,' the prize winning short story that launched Amanda Eyre Ward's career in 1999. : Review: 'Wisecracking, whip-smart, and utterly beguiling, "Love Stories in this Town" is one part Chekhov, one part Patsy Cline, all told with a confident, hip-cocking charm that's completely her own. I flat out loved these stories.' Justin Cronin: 'Amanda Eyre Ward proves once again that she knows just where to strike: the heart, the mind, and the funny bone. Ward tackles the fears of our contemporary collective consciousness - terrorism, war in Iraq - with the same compassion, intelligence, and spot-on insight that she brings to the domestic front -...
